

September 12, 2021
24th Sunday in Ordinary Time
Mark 8:27-35

Now Jesus and his disciples set out for the villages of Caesarea Philippi. Along the way he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that I am?" They said in reply, "John the Baptist, others Elijah, still others one of the prophets."

And he asked them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter said to him in reply, "You are the Messiah." Then he warned them not to tell anyone about him. He began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer greatly and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and rise after three days. He spoke this openly. Then Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. At this he turned around and, looking at his disciples, rebuked Peter and said, "Get behind me, Satan. You are thinking not as God does, but as human beings do."

He summoned the crowd with his disciples and said to them, "Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me. For whoever wishes to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake and that of the gospel will save it."

Background:

This is a turning point in Mark's gospel. Previous to this, Jesus has traveled from town to town preaching the Kingdom of God and healing. From this point forward, he will continue to preach and heal, but his journey will be deliberately toward Jerusalem. As Jesus moves toward Jerusalem he will speak three times to his disciples of his impending rejection, suffering, and death. Each time he speaks of what awaits him in Jerusalem, he will also instruct them on what it means to be his follower.

In Jesus' day there was no consistent understanding of what the Messiah was to be. Some expected a political leader, others a respected teacher, yet others a great prophet. Also, the crowds to whom Jesus preached and brought healing did not seem to have a clear understanding of who he was. All three responses, John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets, would indicate that many believed he was a significant religious person who had come back from the dead. One might also wonder if the responses that come from the disciples reflect their own understanding of who they believed Jesus was as well as the view of the crowds. It is fair to say that even the disciples of Jesus had not come to a consistent understanding of who he was, even if Peter, who spoke for all of them, could say to Jesus, "You are the Messiah." The kind of suffering servant that Jesus indicates he must be is far from Peter's understanding.

The culture of Jesus' day is very unfamiliar to most of us. Most of us live in a culture where one is expected to strive to be independent and self-sufficient. When someone is perceived as conforming to the desires or values of others, their behavior is often seen as giving in to peer pressure or family pressure. Other cultures hold the opinions of family and community in greater esteem than one's own. Jesus lived in a culture where one's relationship to family was the center of life and identity. In the gospels, Jesus is spoken of as the son of Mary or even the carpenter's son. Peter is the son of Jonah, and James and John are the sons of Zebedee. While Jesus had rejected the trade of his father, he was still a person of his culture. It was important to him to find his own meaning and purpose in and among his disciples, his adopted family. This may explain in some part the harsh response Peter received when he tried to privately express his belief and hope, and his objection to Jesus' talking about soon being rejected and put to death. It may also explain why Jesus tried on three different occasions to instruct the disciples about his approaching death. Jesus was still a person of his day. He understood that his role of being part of his familial social group would help him to understand himself.

Reflection Questions:

1. Do you recall some recent experiences that have reminded you how much you are a member of your family, religious community, ethnic or racial community?

2. Are you aware of customs, expressions, or shared ways of doing things that are taken for granted within your community that might appear odd to others?
3. Has there ever been a time in your life when you knew that you needed to make some hard and difficult choices? Were there people from those communities that were supportive, obstacles, confused, or had some other response to your situation?
4. Have you ever felt like you needed to walk away from a circle of friends or a friend?
5. Imagine you are one of the disciples, and you and Jesus have been walking along the road talking, and Jesus turns to you and asks, "Who do you say I am?" How do you respond?
6. Imagine you are with the disciples and you hear the conversation between Jesus and Peter. What are some of your thoughts as this short conversation unfolds?
7. What thoughts arise within you as you hear Jesus say, "Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me. For whoever wishes to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake and that of the gospel will save it."
8. Can you take some time to talk with Jesus about his role as messiah, your desire to take up your cross, or perhaps your own experience of your cross at this point in your life?

The gospel background and reflection questions are written by Fr. Paul Gallagher, OFM. They are edited by Sister Anne Marie Lom, OSF and Joe Thiel. The excerpts from the Sunday readings are prepared by Joe Thiel. To be added to the distribution list, send your name and email address to annemarie.lom@gmail.com

Our Gospel Reflections are hosted by the Franciscan Sisters of Christian Charity. Their homepage is <https://fscs-calledtobe.org/>. One link there is labeled Franciscan Gospel Reflections. A click on the icon will take you to the Gospel reflections for the upcoming Sunday. By following this link, you will be able to blog or comment on the reflection questions. The material will be posted on Fridays and will be available until the following Friday when the new material is posted.

Excerpts from the Lectionary for Mass for Use in the Dioceses of the United States of America, second typical edition © 2001, 1998, 1997, 1986, 1970 Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Inc., Washington, DC. Used with permission. All rights reserved. No portion of this text may be reproduced by any means without permission in writing from the copyright owner.

Please include this information when printing or forwarding.

Excerpts from the readings for September 12, 2021, the Twenty-fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time

The Lord God opens my ear that I may hear; and I have not rebelled, have not turned back.
I gave my back to those who beat me, my cheeks to those who plucked my beard;
my face I did not shield from buffets and spitting. The Lord God is my help, therefore I am not disgraced;
I have set my face like flint, knowing that I shall not be put to shame.
He is near who upholds my right; if anyone wishes to oppose me, let us appear together.
Who disputes my right? Let that man confront me. The Lord God is my help; who will prove me wrong?

I will walk before the Lord, in the land of the living.
I love the Lord because he has heard my voice in supplication, because he has inclined his ear to me the day I called.
The cords of death encompassed me; the snares of the netherworld seized upon me;
I fell into distress and sorrow, and I called upon the name of the Lord,
"O Lord, save my life!" Gracious is the Lord and just; yes, our God is merciful.
The Lord keeps the little ones; I was brought low, and he saved me.

For he has freed my soul from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling.
I shall walk before the Lord in the land of the living.

What good is it, my brothers and sisters, if someone says he has faith but does not have works?
Can that faith save him? If a brother or sister has nothing to wear and has no food for the day, and one of you says to them, "Go in peace, keep warm, and eat well, " but you do not give them the necessities of the body, what good is it?
So also faith of itself, if it does not have works, is dead.
Indeed someone might say, "You have faith and I have works."
Demonstrate your faith to me without works, and I will demonstrate my faith to you from my works.

Jesus and his disciples set out for the villages of Caesarea Philippi.
Along the way he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that I am?"
They said in reply, "John the Baptist, others Elijah, still others one of the prophets."
And he asked them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter said to him in reply, "You are the Christ."
Then he warned them not to tell anyone about him.
He began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer greatly and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and rise after three days. He spoke this openly.
Then Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him.
At this he turned around and, looking at his disciples, rebuked Peter and said,
"Get behind me, Satan. You are thinking not as God does, but as human beings do."
He summoned the crowd with his disciples and said to them,
"Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me.
For whoever wishes to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake and that of the gospel will save it."

Excerpts from Isaiah 50:5-9; Psalm 116:1-9; James 2:14-18; and Mark 8:27-35

From Joe:

Friends,

Here are the gospel background and reflection questions for September 12th, as prepared by Franciscan spiritual director Fr. Paul Gallagher. The gospel is from Mark, where Jesus asks his disciples, "Who do the people say that I am?" They say John the Baptist, Elijah, or one of the prophets. He then asks, "Who do you say that I am," to which Peter replies, "You are the Christ." He teaches them that He must suffer, die, and rise, and that "whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me."

The other readings make additional references that the way of the Lord is not easy, and yet it is God who saves. In the first reading from Isaiah, the servant of the Lord says, "I have not turned back. My face I did not shield from buffets and spitting. The Lord God is my help; I am not disgraced." Psalm 116 proclaims, "I was brought low, and the Lord saved me. He has freed my soul from death, and my feet from stumbling. I will walk before the Lord, in the land of the living." In the second reading, from the letter of James, he writes, "If someone says he has faith, but does not have works, can that faith save him? Faith, if it does not have works, is dead."

Joe

> i < May the Word light your way each day!