

August 23, 2026
21st Sunday in Ordinary Time
Matthew 16:13-20

When Jesus went into the region of Caesarea Philippi he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?" They replied, "Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, still others Jeremiah or one of the prophets." He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" 16 Simon Peter said in reply, "You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God."

Jesus said to him in reply, "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah. For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my heavenly Father. And so I say to you, you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of the netherworld shall not prevail against it. I will give you the keys to the kingdom of heaven. Whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Then he strictly ordered his disciples to tell no one that he was the Messiah.

Background:

The Gospel from last week described Jesus' encounter with a Canaanite woman in the pagan region of Tyre and Sidon. Following that exchange, Matthew reports that Jesus returned to the Jewish region and the shores of the Sea of Galilee. Great numbers of people followed him into the mountains, where he cured many. After the crowd had been with them for three days, Jesus once again told the disciples to give the people something to eat. They had only seven loaves and a few fish. Jesus had the crowd recline on the grass, and he blessed the bread and had the disciples distribute it to the crowd. Then he had them collect what was left - seven baskets full of leftovers this time, from the crowd of 4,000. When the crowd was dismissed, Jesus and the disciples made their way in a boat to the district of Magadan, where he encountered some Pharisees and Sadducees. They asked him to produce some sign from heaven. Jesus left them without responding to their request. When they got to the other side of the sea, Jesus told the disciples to beware of the leaven of the Sadducees and Pharisees. The disciples had forgotten to bring bread for the trip, and they presumed Jesus was talking about the leaven for bread. Jesus made it clear that he was speaking of the leaven of the Sadducees and Pharisees' teaching. All this leads to the Gospel text for this week.

Similar to this week's Gospel from Matthew, Mark's Gospel too recounts an occasion when Jesus asks the same questions that are posed here (Mark 8:27-29). In Mark's account, Peter confesses that Jesus is the Messiah, but not that he is "the Son of the Living God." Also, Jesus does not comment on Peter's profession of faith, but he tells the disciples not to speak to others of what they have heard. Then Jesus speaks to them for the first time of his passion and death. Peter, hearing this for the first time, responds by taking Jesus aside and voicing some objection to what Jesus is saying. Jesus replies by telling Peter to "Get behind me, Satan, you are not thinking as God does, but as human beings do (Mark 8:33b)." Mark's account is powerful, but the reader will benefit from keeping the two accounts separate. Matthew's account, the Gospel text for today, represents a very different perspective into Jesus' ministry and its own invitation for our response.

It will also be helpful to be aware that people of Mediterranean cultures have a very different sense of themselves than most westerners. They are "other-orientated" to the extent that they may not have a sense of who they are apart from their family or clan. From this perspective, Jesus is not quizzing his disciples to see if they know his true identity. His questions are an effort to sort out for himself who he is. While this way of thinking is very different from what many of us are accustomed to, there are examples of this mindset throughout the Gospels. In John's Gospel, those who question Jesus are satisfied to learn that he is from Nazareth. Nathanael represents their attitude when he asks, "Can anything good come from Nazareth?" (John 1:46) In both Matthew and Mark, Jesus is identified as the son of a craftsman (Matthew 13:55 and Mark 6:3). Lastly, the Gospels portray an attitude that if you know one's family, you know the person. "Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and John and Simon and Judas? And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all this? And they took offense at Jesus.” (Matthew 13:55-57)

Hopefully, these passages help to highlight a different kind of understanding that people of Jesus’ day perceived of themselves and their identity. The more appreciation of the culture in which the Gospels were written, the deeper insight we get for ourselves and our culture.

Reflection Questions:

1. Have you been through times when you were searching for direction or discovered you were not happy with the direction your life was heading?
2. Who are your rocks, the people in your life who have helped you sort out some of life’s quagmires?
3. Has anyone ever made a comment to you about yourself that revealed that they saw you in a different light than you saw yourself? What feelings arose from those experiences?
4. If you were one of the disciples and Jesus asked you who people say he is, what would you think of Jesus asking you this? What feelings would you have at even being asked?
5. How would you respond?
6. In this Gospel Jesus says to Peter: "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah. For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my heavenly Father. And so I say to you, you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of the netherworld shall not prevail against it. I will give you the keys to the kingdom of heaven. Whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.” How do you think Peter is feeling as Jesus says these things?
7. Can you also hear Jesus saying something similar to you? How do you feel, considering that Jesus looks upon you with similar feelings?
8. Can you take time now to talk with God about how you see God working in the world today, or how he is working in your own life? What questions would you like to ask? Are there questions God might like to ask you?

The Gospel background and reflection questions are prepared and distributed by Sister Anne Marie Lom, OSF and Joe Thiel, as edited from Reflections authored by Fr. Paul Gallagher, OFM. The excerpts from the Sunday readings are prepared by Joe Thiel. To be added to the distribution list, send your name and email address to thiel.osh@gmail.com.

Our Gospel Reflections are hosted by the Franciscan Sisters of Christian Charity. Their homepage is <https://fscs-calledtobe.org/>. One link there is labeled Franciscan Gospel Reflections. A click there will take you to the Gospel reflections for the upcoming Sunday. By following this link, you will be able to blog or comment on the reflection questions. The material will be posted on Fridays and will be available until the following Friday when the new material is posted.

Excerpts from the Lectionary for Mass for Use in the Dioceses of the United States of America, second typical edition © 2001, 1998, 1997, 1986, 1970 Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Inc., Washington, DC. Used with permission. All rights reserved. No portion of this text may be reproduced by any means without permission in writing from the copyright owner.

Please include this information when printing or forwarding.

Excerpts from the readings for August 23, 2026, the Twenty-first Sunday in Ordinary Time

Thus says the Lord to Shebna, master of the palace:

"I will thrust you from your office and pull you down from your station.

On that day I will summon my servant Eliakim, son of Hilkiah;

I will clothe him with your robe, and gird him with your sash, and give over to him your authority.
He shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to the house of Judah.
I will place the key of the House of David on Eliakim's shoulder;
when he opens, no one shall shut, when he shuts, no one shall open.
I will fix him like a peg in a sure spot, to be a place of honor for his family."

Lord, your love is eternal; do not forsake the work of your hands.
I will give thanks to you, O Lord, with all my heart, for you have heard the words of my mouth; in the presence of the angels I will sing your praise; I will worship at your holy temple.
I will give thanks to your name, because of your kindness and your truth:
When I called, you answered me; you built up strength within me.
The Lord is exalted, yet the lowly he sees, and the proud he knows from afar.
Your kindness, O Lord, endures forever; forsake not the work of your hands.

Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God!
How inscrutable are his judgments and how unsearchable his ways!
For who has known the mind of the Lord or who has been his counselor?
Or who has given the Lord anything that he may be repaid?
For from him and through him and for him are all things. To him be glory forever. Amen.

Jesus went into the region of Caesarea Philippi and he asked his disciples,
"Who do people say that the Son of Man is?"
They replied, "Some say John the Baptist, others Elijah, still others Jeremiah or one of the prophets."
He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?"
Simon Peter said in reply, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God."
Jesus said to him in reply, "Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah.
For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my heavenly Father.
And so I say to you, you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of the netherworld shall not prevail against it.
I will give you the keys to the kingdom of heaven.
Whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven;
and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven."
Then he strictly ordered his disciples to tell no one that he was the Christ.

Excerpts from Isaiah 22:19-23; Psalm 138:1-3, 6, 8; Romans 11:33-36; and Matthew 16:13-20