Baptism of the Lord
Luke 3:15-16, 21-22

Now the people were filled with expectation, and all were asking in their hearts whether John might be the Messiah. John answered them all, saying, "I am baptizing you with water, but one mightier than I is coming. I am not worthy to loosen the thongs of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

After all the people had been baptized and Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, heaven was opened and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, "You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased."

Background:

Throughout their history, the Jews looked for the coming of a Messiah who would establish the Reign of God. There were those who thought that perhaps John the Baptist was that long-awaited anointed one of God. In the first line of the Gospel, Luke acknowledges those hopes. He then quotes John's denial of being that "anointed one." The Baptist, without naming Jesus, then speaks of "one who is to come," and compares his own standing to that of the true Messiah: "I am not worthy to loosen the thongs of his sandals." Washing the feet of another was the task of the very lowest servants. It was also a gesture of respect, that of a student for his master. John uses this image in comparing himself to the one who is truly God's anointed. John is saying that he is not even worthy to be a student of the Messiah.

In the last two verses of the text, Luke first describes the Holy Spirit coming upon Jesus, and then the Father confirming that Jesus is indeed His son. Luke's description of these events is different from those in the other Gospels. Here God speaks to his son in a personal and intimate way. John has finished baptizing, Jesus is praying. Luke describes Jesus as being at prayer when the heavens open and the Holy Spirit comes upon him, and the voice of God states that Jesus is his beloved son in whom God is well pleased, Luke describes a very personal moment between the Father, the Holy Spirit, and Jesus. Luke's description also removes any sense of John's involvement in the experience.

The recording of the Father's voice confirming that Jesus was his son was very significant for the people of the day. Their limited understanding of reproduction made it impossible for them to know who the actual father of any child was. Therefore, the father had to publicly state that he was the father of a child. By doing this, he was giving the child legitimacy, status in the community, and the right to an inheritance, and he was taking on the responsibility of being the child's father. This was a critical part of the social structure of the day. Using this social institution, Luke presents God as claiming Jesus as His Son.

Reflection Questions:

1. Did your parents let you know that they were pleased that you were their daughter or son? How does that memory or lack of one affect you now, and as you were developing?
2. When was the last time you were filled with expectation? How did being filled with expectation affect you, your relationships with others, and your relationship with God?
3. What are your expectations for God's involvement in your life, and in the world?
4. Can you imagine Jesus praying after he has been baptized? What kind of day is it? Are there others around Jesus? What are they doing? Is John present? What is Jesus' mood? What do you suspect happens within Jesus as he hears the voice of God? What happens to the others who might be present? What happens to you as you imagine this event?
5. Do you sense that God is pleased with you? How does God communicate that to you? Have you ever taken the time to respond to God?
6. Can you talk to God now about your own sense of being beloved, your hopes and expectations for God, the ways you would like to point to the presence of God in the world, or some other feeling that might have arisen in you as you read this Gospel text?

Excerpts from the readings for January 12, 2025, the Feast of the Baptism of the Lord

In year C of the liturgical cycle, the Lectionary has multiple choices for 1st and 2nd readings on this feast.

Isaiah 42:1-4, 6-7

Thus says the Lord: Here is my servant whom I uphold, my chosen one with whom I am pleased, upon whom I have put my spirit; he shall bring forth justice to the nations, not crying out, not shouting, not making his voice heard in the street. a bruised reed he shall not break, and a smoldering wick he shall not quench, until he establishes justice on the earth; the coastlands will wait for his teaching. I, the Lord, have called you for the victory of justice, I have grasped you by the hand; I formed you, and set you as a covenant of the people, a light for the nations, to open the eyes of the blind, to bring out prisoners from confinement, and from the dungeon, those who live in darkness.

Or Isaiah 40:1-5, 9-11

Comfort, give comfort to my people, says your God. Speak tenderly to Jerusalem, and proclaim to her that her service is at an end, her guilt is expiated; indeed, she has received from the hand of the Lord double for all her sins. A voice cries out: In the desert prepare the way of the Lord! Make straight in the wasteland a highway for our God! Every valley shall be filled in, every mountain and hill shall be made low; the rugged land shall be made a plain, the rough country, a broad valley. Then the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all people shall see it together; for the Lord has spoken. Go up on to a high mountain, Zion, herald of glad tidings; cry out at the top of your voice, Jerusalem, herald of good news! Fear not to cry out and say to the cities of Judah: Here is your God! Here comes with power the Lord God, who rules by a strong arm; here is his reward with him, his recompense before him. Like a shepherd he feeds his flock; in his arms he gathers the lambs, carrying them in his bosom, and leading the ewes with care.

Psalm 29:1-4, 9-10

The Lord will bless his people with peace.
Give to the Lord glory and praise, you sons of God,
Give to the Lord the glory due his name; adore the Lord in holy attire.
The voice of the Lord is over the waters, the Lord, over vast waters.
The voice of the Lord is mighty; the voice of the Lord is majestic.
The God of glory thunders, and in his temple all say, "Glory!"
The Lord is enthroned above the flood as king forever.

Or Psalm 104:1-4, 24-30

O bless the Lord, my soul. O Lord, my God, you are great indeed!
you are clothed with majesty and glory, robed in light as with a cloak.
You have spread out the heavens like a tent-cloth;
You have constructed your palace upon the waters.
You make the clouds your chariot; you travel on the wings of the wind.
You make the winds your messengers, and flaming fire your ministers.
How manifold are your works, O Lord! In wisdom you have wrought them all-- the earth is full of your creatures; the sea also, great and wide, in which are schools without number of living things both small and great.
They look to you to give them food in due time. When you give it to them, they gather it; when you open your hand, they are filled with good things.
If you take away their breath, they perish and return to the dust.
When you send forth your spirit, they are created,
and you renew the face of the earth.

Acts 10:34-38

Peter proceeded to speak to those gathered, saying: "In truth, I see that God shows no partiality.
Rather, in every nation whoever fears him and acts uprightly is acceptable to him.
You know the word that he sent to the Israelites as he proclaimed peace through Jesus Christ, who is Lord of all, what has happened all over Judea, beginning in Galilee after the baptism that John preached, how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and power.
He went about doing good and healing all those oppressed by the devil, for God was with him."

Or Titus 2:11-14; 3:4-7

The grace of God has appeared, saving all and training us to reject godless ways and worldly desires and to live temperately, justly, and devoutly in this age, as we await the blessed hope, the appearance of the glory of our great God and savior Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us to deliver us from all lawlessness and to cleanse for himself a people as his own, eager to do what is good.
When the kindness and generous love of God our savior appeared, not because of any righteous deeds we had done but because of his mercy,
He saved us through the bath of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit, whom he richly poured out on us through Jesus Christ, so that we might be justified by his grace and become heirs in hope of eternal life.

Luke 3:15-16, 21-22

Filled with expectation, all were asking in their hearts whether John might be the Christ.
John answered them all, saying, "I am baptizing you with water, but one mightier than I is coming.
I am not worthy to loosen the thongs of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire."

After all the people had been baptized and Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, heaven was opened and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, "You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased."

Friends,

Here are the Gospel background and reflection questions for January 12th, as prepared by Franciscan spiritual director Fr. Paul Gallagher. This Sunday is the feast of the Baptism of the Lord. In the Gospel from Luke, the people, filled with expectation, were asking in their hearts whether John the Baptist might be the messiah, but John declared himself to be "not worthy to loosen the thongs of the sandals" of the one who was to come after him. After Jesus was baptized, the Holy Spirit descended upon him, and a voice from heaven said, "You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased."

There are two options for each of the other readings. All of them refer to some element of this baptism event--the expectation and anticipation, the baptism itself, the descent of the spirit, or the voice and words from heaven. For the first reading, in the option from Isaiah 42, thus says the Lord: "Here is my chosen one with whom I am pleased, upon whom I have put my spirit." The option from Isaiah 40 says, "A voice cries out, prepare the way of the Lord. The glory of the Lord shall be revealed, for the Lord has spoken." Psalm 29 proclaims, "The voice of the Lord is over the waters, mighty and majestic." The alternative, Psalm 104, declares, "When you send forth your spirit, they are created, and you renew the face of the earth." For the second reading, in the option from Acts, Peter instructs, "You know what has happened all over Judea, beginning in Galilee after the baptism that John preached, how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and power." And the option from Titus says, "We await the blessed hope, the appearance of our savior Jesus Christ. He saved us through the bath of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit."

The first few verses of this Sunday's Gospel might sound familiar, as if we have heard them another time recently. In fact, the first two verses for this Sunday were also in the middle of the Gospel reading four weeks ago, on the third Sunday of Advent. That advent Gospel was about preparation. The people were asking John, "What should we do?" Now, as he is about to embark on his ministry, Jesus, the "mightier one" who is to come after John, also is baptized by John, and the Holy Spirit descends upon him, the one who "will baptize with the Holy Spirit and fire."
